In the Sporting World.

The finest medals ever furnished for a meet in Washington for colored athletes are now on exhibition in the window of the Gray & Gray Pharmacy. The medals are counterparts of those awarded the athletes in the George Washington and Georgetown University meets at Convention Hall. Gold medals will be given for first place, silver for second place, and bronze for the third place and for members of the winning relay teams.

W. Fantroy Williams was at M Street High School last week, and spent some time in coaching the track team. From his wide experience in competition with the track athletes of all races at the big athletic meets in the country, he was able to do much for the youngsters. At Armstrong the long corridors are put into use for training, and at many of the graded schools the long halls are used in which to practice starts and to jog.

Howard University has a galaxy of track athletes never before equaled. Solanear, a former Commercial High and Alpha Club athlete, of New York, who has achieved fame as a sprinter in that city, is now on the hilltop. Ed. Gray as a runner has a string of credits not surpassed by his football career. Maurice Curtis made a sensational debut at Michigan last year and bids fair to continue. "Binge" Desmond is acknowledged premier at the 440-yard dash, while Penn in the mile, Robbins at middle distances, and Slaughter in the quarter are a few of the limelight variety at Howard University.

When the teachers were paid nearly 300 seats were secured by patrons of the coming meet. The demand for seats on this occasion is growing fast.

The boys in the elementary schools about the city are getting ready for the event. Athletic suits are being bought and body training is indulged in, to be in trim for hard work approaching.

Dinner to Mr. Chapman.

Mr. W. T. Chapman, of Lincoln, D. C., was the host at the dinner given to the Executive Board of the Northeastern Suburban Citizens' Association. The invited guests to the dinner were Mr. Francis Wells, Mr. R. D. Mullin, Mr. George Lewis, Mr. W. T. Chapman, Chairman of the Executive Board; Mr. John Paynter, Secretary; Dr. W. W. Jones, Mr. Chas. T. Mitchell, Mr. C. J. Nixon, Mr. Charles H. S. Wesley and Mr. Homer Mee.

The dinner was served at a table at which all the guests were seated. The table was beautifully decorated with a large basket filled with American Beauty roses. At the head of the table was Mr. Chapman, and on the left side in the center was Mr. John Paynter, the toastmaster. After dinner the gentlemen were called on to make speeches, and led off with Mr. Mitchell, one of the oldest and active workers in the northeastern suburbs, who made the first speech, and it continued until each gentleman had been called on and responded.

WORTHY GRAND SUPERIOR BANQUETED.

Brilliant Illuminations—Ex-Grand Master Coleman Expresses Thanks.

One of the grandest events of this season was the testimonial banquet tendered Madame Parker at the newly-renovated Odd Fellows Hall Jan. 24, in honor of her unanimous reelection as the Most Worthy Grand Superior. The main hall, with its brilliant electric lights, artistic arrangement of flags and bunting and beautifully decorated tables, was a sight of which we often dream, but seldom see. At 8 p. m., to the strains of a grand march, played by an orchestra that was hid by a row of palms, entered Mrs. Parker and her invited guests, led by a company of young girls of Juvenile No. 735.

The guests being seated, an appropriate welcome address was extended on behalf of the Juveniles by Miss Rebecca Carter, of Juveniles No. 347. "Blessed be the tie that binds" was sung, and the blessing was asked by ex-Grand Director J. F. N. Wilkerson. Piano and violin duet was played entitled "Our invited guest." Welcome address on the part of the Households was extended by Sister Mary J. Douglass, D. R. N., Governor. Selection by the orchestra. Solo by Miss Ruth Gray, with Master Leonard Bowles accompanist. Address on behalf of the nonmembers of the fraternity by Mrs. J. E. Hawkins. A brief but excellent address was made by the D. G. Master, William L. Pollard, Sister Louisa Holmes, Chairman of the Committee on Banquet, in well-chosen remarks, told the guest what to expect later. Brief remarks were made by ex-D. G. Master James H. Coleman, who availed himself of the opportunity to publicly thank Sister Parker for the great assistance rendered him in the final effort put forth under his administration to pay for the bill. A solo by Miss Ruth Gray was sung very sweetly and won loud applause. A chorus by Juvenile girls of No. 735, composed of Misses Gray, Chase, Bundy, Clemons, Goodall, Lomax, Carter and Waters, was warmly applauded. Ex-Grand Master and now Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Odd Fellows William L. Houston addressed the assembly in his usual felicitous manner, and prophesied a much higher and exalted position for the Worthy Grand Superior, for "at Atlanta, Ga., a woman could safely be added to the S. C. of M." that body in the future being relieved of the complicated cases of law. His remarks were given marked attention.

As our guest when the Worthy Grand Superior arose from her seat, the Chautauqua salute was given by all present. In one of the best efforts of her many speeches, she thanked the delegates, their Households and all present for the honor conferred on her, and assured them that whatever duty she shall be called on to perform will in the future be given the same unselfish devotion as she had in the past. The conclusion of her eloquent remarks was the signal for a great outburst of applause. Preceded by 12 girls of the Juveniles, with costumes of white, Mrs. Parker was led to the platform, where Miss Bertha Chase in a presentation speech that captivated the house, presented the Most Worthy Grand Superior with a large basket of American Beauty roses. She accepted them in a beautiful address, full of love and good cheer. While the orchestra played, the following menu was served: Creamed oysters, olives, pickles, chicken salad, lettuce salad, fancy ice cream, fancy cakes, fruit, black coffee, chocolate and claret punch. The sumptuous feast was enjoyed by those present, especially the quick and efficient serving of the several dishes, which the committee of delegates superintended themselves, thus assuring the omission of none.

D. M. N. Governor Sister Fannie Powell, though suffering from a cold, gave a creditable example of a Mistress of Ceremonies. Brother Thomas Wright, President of the Odd Fellows Hall Association, was absent on account of sickness in his family. S. W. Watson, Secretary of the Association, made a brief remarks when Brother Wright failed to respond.

To the following committee is due the credit of the very successful banquet, with the number of their Households: No. 2269, Fannie Powell, D. M. N. Governor; 1267, Mary J. Douglass, D. R. N. Governor; 41, Mary Bowles; 2461, Cora Spear; 442, Annie Hawkins; 740, Mary Epps; 1518, Hattie Williams; 2203, Mattie Campbell; 1712, Callie Scott; 569, Louisa Holmes; 8, Indiana Tyler; 23, Jennie Vannier; 2302, Mary E. Henderson; Treasurer; 38, Laura Tyler; 1710, Mary Gross.

Letters of regret were read from the following: W. G. Treasurer of Philadelphia, Pa., Sister Elizabeth Banks, Grand Secretary James F. Needham, D. W. Recorder of Maryland M. A. Burkett, Sister Lillie Pratt, of New York City; Henry P. Slaughter, editor, Journal.

Among the many present were District Grand Secretary Charles S. Hill, Mr. A. Murray, Mrs. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tascos, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Singleton, Mr. and Mrs. John Mont, Mr. Stafford Parker and Mr. Alexander S. Howard.

Thus closed the banquet, all singing "God be with you," etc.

CHATS ON MUSIC AND MUSIC STUDY.

(By J. Hillary Taylor.)

The Relation of Parent, Pupil and Teacher.

Parent.

If you want your children to love home, make things interesting for them. Good music is one of the greatest means of keeping them from evil influences. By all means give any of them musical instruction who may show the slightest desire or talent for a knowledge of the art. What can you as parents do to insure the rapid and thorough progress of your children in music? Have you ever asked yourself this question? If not, let us begin to think seriously about the matter and see in what ways you can be an inspiration and help to your loved ones.

First, let me say that you should have full confidence in the teacher's ability under whom you place your child; secondly, see to it that all lessons assigned are faithfully practiced according to the teacher's directions (you should find out what these directions are); thirdly, have a set time for the child to practice, and do not allow it to be disturbed for frivolous reasons. When convenient, it is best not to have the piano in the parlor, but in a room where the pupil will not be interrupted by visitors, whom you are compelled to welcome whenever they may call. Fourthly, see to it that the child is at the teacher's studio at the appointed time, and that he carries all books and music that may be necessary; fifthly, let the teacher do the teaching.

Do not force your ideas upon him. If you have ideas or suggestions to make, he will be only too pleased to listen to them and will weigh your advice for all it is worth. Sixthly, pay all tuition and music bills on the dates due, and, if for any unavoidable reason, you cannot meet your obligations, let the teacher know at once, and he will adjust matters satisfactorily. Seventh, make it your duty to speak a good word for the teacher whenever a chance presents itself. You can aid him greatly in the fight for a foothold and public recognition.

Pupil.

The pupil, the second part of this great union, should aim to respect and obey the teacher's every advice and admonition. You owe it to your parents, teacher and yourself to do the very best you can, at all times; so doing, a great reward will await you. Some lessons will be found more difficult than others, and should be studied and practiced with more earnestness, if you desire to conquer the obstacles. Do not spare the number of repetitions you may have to make of a certain passage in order to perform it ideally. Some passages require a few repetitions, others many; while some exact the most arduous practice imaginable, in order to conquer the difficulties. Seek to discover as many facts as you possibly can about all the lessons given you. Do not wait for the teacher to tell you everything you should know about the music art. What you discover and learn for yourself will be retained longer and valued higher than that which is handed you from your teacher's lips. Do not waste valuable time practicing music that is entirely above your stage of advancement and that the teacher has not assigned you.

Practice slowly; count aloud, seeing that the counts are even and regular; accent properly and phrase according to the marks of expression used. After the lesson has been thoroughly learned practice playing without counting aloud, but see to it that the tempo (time) is just as flawless as though you were counting audibly. Do not fail to ask questions about points in your lessons that you may not fully comprehend. The teacher will not, as some pupils often think, feel and think you are dull for so acting, but just the opposite—that you are an intelligent, alive and interested pupil. The wise man asks questions; the fool never. The little things in your studies, as accidentals, pauses, ties, slurs, fingerings, rhythm, accentuation, meter, etc., should be observed carefully; otherwise the spirit of the music may be lost. The large things are usually looked after, but the small ones neglected.

Doing these things, and doing them with a heart and earnestness, you will be richly rewarded by having the musical heavens open unto you her manifold treasures.

Teacher.

Coming to the teacher, the third and last important part of this musical compact, you should see to it that you secure the services of one who is thoroughly equipped by training, natural endowment and experience to carry the child through the various stages of development necessary in order to make him a good performer. He should be a man or woman of good moral character as well as of sterling musical requirements. He should be friendly and affable in manner, interesting and well informed in general conversation, alive and energetic about the development of the charge given him, and an art enthusiast.

He should teach all the auxiliary branches of the art, along with the principal study. Theory, harmony, biography, history, terminology, etc., should be taught as far as necessary, in order that the pupil become a broad-minded, thoroughly-equipped musical individual.

The teacher should make it a point to visit the family of the pupil occasionally, as many things can be learned ed by so doing which he could not gain a knowledge of otherwise. Then, the parents want to know and feel that the teacher does not feel himself above them. It is the teacher's duty to keep the parent informed as to the progress of the pupil, and he should often call on them to see that his instructions are carried out in regard to practice, etc. The teacher holds a great position of responsibility and should realize it by doing his very best to make something of each pupil intrusted to his care. To raise in each pupil that personal power to do for himself and become his own best teacher should be the ideal aim of every accomplished music teacher.

BOARD & MCGUIRE

Make an Announcement.

We are pleased to announce to our friends and patrons, and to the public generally, that we have purchased the drug store at the southwest corner of Ninth and U streets northwest, where we propose to conduct one of the most up-to-date, clean and reliable drug stores in Washington. We will completely restock this store with new and high-grade drugs, chemicals, toilet articles, candies, cigars, stationery, novelties and a FULL LINE OF THE GREAT A. D. S. PREPARATIONS. In short, it is our intention to be able to supply you with everything carried in a first-class drug store.

We will continue our Fourteenth street store as before, but as we need more room for our growing business, we took advantage of this opportunity to purchase a growing business thoroughfare that is fast becoming "the uptown F street of Washington."

We will continue our policy which our six years of business experience proves to be a paying one, that of giving the people good quality and good service for the least money commensurate with such quality and service.

We take this opportunity to thank the many physicians of Washington, who by their kind offices have made possible our success, and to thank our many friends and patrons, who by their kind words and patronage have done so much to encourage us to further efforts.

To all we extend a cordial welcome to visit us in our new place of business at the corner of NINTH and YOU streets northwest, across from FORD DABNEY'S THEATER.

Very cordially yours,
